

GRRN YOUNG RESEARCHERS AWARD

At its second international summit, the Global Resilience Research Network (GRRN) is proud to introduce the GRRN Young Researchers Award for excellent and innovative work and ideas in the broad field of resilience conducted by the most promising young members of our network. We are happy to support the efforts of our young members by raising awareness for their work, and to acknowledge their contribution to the interdisciplinary research field of resilience. We would like to invite all young scientists working in the broad field of resilience research to apply for the GRRN Young Researchers Award.

If you need any further information or have any questions do not hesitate to contact us via email or phone.
